11th Hour Compromise Move On Anti-Inflation Bill Seen

SENATE STARTS EIGHTH DAY OF PRICE DEBATE

Thomas, Leader of Farm Bloc, Predicts Delay of Vote on Hatch Amendment

HIGHER CEILINGS SEEN

Last Minute Efforts Made To Settle Differences With Administration Leaders.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Last-minute efforts to compromise a controversy between the administration and the farm bloc appeared to be gaining ground today as the senate began its eighth day of debate on the anti-inflation bill.

Senator Thomas (D., Okla.) told reporters there would be no vote on a controversial "cost of production" amendment offered by Senator Hatch (D., N. M.) until efforts had been exhausted to effect a compromise.

There were indications the administration might agree to modify a proposal offered by Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, so that it would direct President Roosevelt to lift farm price ceilings which did not reflect to growers their increased labor and other costs since Jan. 1, 1941.

While he denied any agreement had been reached on such a change, Senator Brown (D., Mich.) co-author of the administration bill, said in response to a query: "I think we can take it."

Thomas said he felt a modification of this nature would satisfy most of the farm bloc members, who succeeded yesterday in temporarily inserting into the bill a provision revising upward the basis for parity prices.

As now drawn, the Barkley amendment would require the president to take farm labor and other costs into account if ceilings proved too low, but would fix no date from which increases could be calculated. Farm senators have contended that only future increases, which occurred after the bill was signed, could be considered under its terms.

Before Barkley's proposal could be acted on, Senator Hatch (D., N. M.) sought to amend it to pro-

Hundreds Flock To Auto Club for Driver Licenses

Hundreds of Mansfield and Richland county motorists jammed the Richland County Auto club today in a last-minute rush to obtain drivers' licenses before the deadline at midnight.

Yesterday's sale of 1,710 kept an increased staff feverishly working to accommodate customers and brought the total sale up to 12,110 at closing time last night.

The office will remain open until 7:30 p. m. today and doors will close at that time, Jack Berger, Auto Club assistant secretary said, to accommodate persons already in the building.

Although the total sale is expected to fall considerably below that of the September sale last year when 18,027 licenses were issued, today's sale will probably run close to the final day in 1941 when 1,903 licenses were issued.

Drivers operating vehicles without new licenses after midnight tonight will be subject to penalty, Berger pointed out. He added that issuance will be resumed at the auto club office Thursday at 8:30 a. m.

35 MPH Speed Takes Effect At Midnight

Majority Ready to Heed New Regulation; Five Face Charges.

While the majority of Mansfield motorists were already slowing down their driving in advance of the 35-mile national speed limit which takes effect at midnight tonight, there were at least five motorists facing charges today of driving at from 40 to 70 miles an hour.

Compliance with the 35-mile speed will be a basic requirement for obtaining both tire and gasoline rations. Rationing of gasoline, four gallons weekly, goes into effect Nov. 22.

City, county and state officials have urged that the 35-mile speed be observed. Several arrests have been made and highway patrolmen have been "blacklisting" speeding drivers, giving names to the OPA which takes their record into consideration when granting new tires, and tubes.

Arrests have been made in the city which already has a 35-mile an hour speed limit.

One of the five motorists arrested was a Cleveland resident, Thomas H. Moore, accused by the state highway patrol of traveling at 70-miles-an-hour on U. S. Route 42. He posted bond in Mansfield municipal court for $35 and paid fine and costs totalling $26.30 when arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch today.

Two violators were to appear in special traffic court this afternoon. Steve Schinsky, Mansfield R. D. 5, arrested on a charge of driving at 40-miles an hour in the Newman school 20-mile zone, and Clyde C. Pittman, 642 Gilbert avenue, charged with exceeding the speed limit on Sherman avenue.

Joseph Adams of Elwood, Ind., paid fine and costs of $16.30 in Mansfield municipal court this morning and Marion Hamilton, 333 West Third street, was cited to appear Oct. 7. Both were arrested on speeding charges.

City traffic officers were instructed today by Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals to increase their efforts to apprehend speeders.

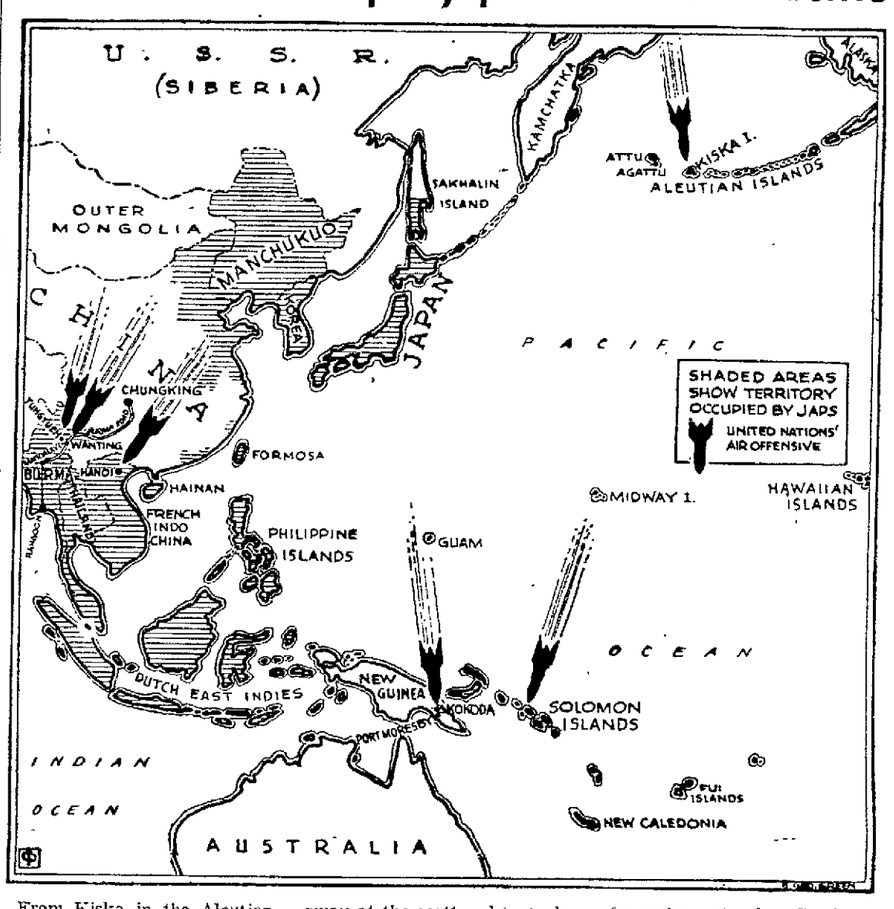
Taylor Sees Spanish Foreign Minister For 45 Minutes.

MADRID—(INS)—Myron C. Taylor, special envoy to the Vatican for President Roosevelt, held a 45-minute conference with General Francisco Gomez Jordana, new Spanish foreign minister, shortly after his arrival in Madrid from Rome, it was learned today.

Taylor later engaged in a lengthy meeting with Monsignor Gaetano Cicognani, the papal nuncio to Spain who with American Ambassador Carlton J. Hayes and embassy officials met him at the airport when he arrived.

Ambassador Hayes gave a dinner for Taylor last night and General Jordana and the British minister, Arthur Yencken, were present.

U. S. Bombers Chop at Jap Tentacles In Pacific



From Kiska in the Aleutian islands to the Solomons and from China to New Guinea, United States Army, Navy and Marine planes are pounding away at the scattered tentacles of the Japanese forces strung through the Pacific and the Orient. Falling bombs on the Central Press map above show how American pilots on several fronts have struck at Jap bases, supply depots, air fields and harbors. In the Aleutians, Royal Canadian Air Force planes joined Americans for the attack on Kiska.

SINK 'GUSHER' WATER SHAFT

Workmen Bring in New City Well Expected to Produce 500,000 Gallons.

Striking of a "gusher" well in the Mansfield water supply district was reported yesterday afternoon by O. C. Kalbfleisch, waterworks superintendent.

The well, sunk as a test hole about 300 feet south of an inadequate test operation closed last week, proved to be of the artesian type. If it does not detract from wells now in operation, Kalbfleisch says, this well alone will insure an adequate water supply to meet any unusual or increased industrial as well as consumer demands.

After sinking the shaft 101 feet a crew of the Saltzgaber Well Drilling company brought in the gusher. On the basis of the capacity of other wells, the new drilling will produce from 500,000 to 600,000 gallons of water every 24 hours—exceeding in some cases the output of other wells now in operation.

Drillers are continuing the shaft to determine the thickness of the gravel strata. Generally, the layer of gravel in the earth structure of the Lexington-Ontario region is 65 to 75 feet thick.

The wells are in the vicinity of Clear Fork creek. It has been suggested, Kalbfleisch says, that a dam be constructed in the stream to back up water which will be asborbed into the gravel strata to feed the wells now being pumped.

CLEARS PLANES

House Group Says Complaints Were 'Enemy-Inspired.'

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— The president of the Society of Automotive Engineers declares that some recent criticism of United States warplanes has been inspired by sources fishing for technical information that would benefit the enemy.

"Some of the criticism," said A. E. Herrington, Indianapolis, in an interview, "has come from those interested in creating dissension among us. Some of it also had been apparent efforts to start discussions which would disclose valuable engineering information."

"Performance is the only proper basis of comparison. The point is, do we shoot down more enemy airplanes than they do of ours? On such a basis our record against the Jap Zero fighter of which we hear so much, is very good."

START PAVING TWO DAYS LATE

Concrete Work on 30-N Job To Start Friday; Engineer Cites New Delays.

Laying of concrete on the U. S. Route 30-N grade elimination project west of the city probably will be started Friday, two days behind schedule, R. J. Williams, resident engineer for the Lombardo Brothers company, project contractor, said today.

Williams said the firm's inability to get equipment repairs, the proper equipment, and delivery of materials on time were responsible for the delay.

"We have an A-7 priority rating on this job which doesn't mean much in war times, and no one has done anything about getting the rating changed," Williams asserted.

"If the weather remains favorable we hope to get a part or all of the concrete poured this fall, but I won't promise to complete the job by cold weather. All we can do is keep on trying and hope for the best," he said.

Meanwhile, Vance Grimes, state highway division engineer at Ashland, said in a letter today to

1942 Series Opens, and It May Be Last Until War Ends

(By International News Service)

ST. LOUIS — The 1942 world series, premier event of baseball, opens in St. Louis today, providing war-minded America with a brief interlude in the grim business of war.

It was almost "baseball as usual" as the St. Lous Cardinals, champions of the National league, and the New York Yankees, winners in the American league, clashed in Sportsman's park in the first game of the annual classic.

Game time was set at 2:30 p. m., Mansfield time and from the park-bound throngs, the crowds in St. Louis hotels and the general holiday air, one might have thought that this edition of the baseball championship was one of those of by-gone, peace-time years.

But there was a subtle difference.

Wise heads among the sport's leaders shook in warning that this may well be the last such extravaganza until peace comes again. Star players were announcing plans to join the armed services after the series ends.

Nevertheless, a sell-out of 35,000 or more seats were predicted well before the first ball was pitched this afternoon.

The Yanks were quoted as 9 to 20 to win the series. For today's game, the odds were closer. Morton Cooper, Card pitcher was an 8 to 5 underdog against Charlie Ruffing, assigned to pitch for New York.

JAPS DRIVEN BACK 10 MILES IN MOUNTAINS

Allied Troops in New Guinea Gain First Objective In New Offensive.

'ADVANCE CONTINUES'

Retreating Enemy Abandons Supplies, Expected to Make Stand at Town.

(By Associated Press)

GENERAL MARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—Allied mountain troops, sifting through the difficult jungle and mountain country of the Owen Stanley range, have captured the first objective of their New Guineas offensive and sent the Japanese into a hurried northward retreat, a communique said today.

Consolidating their positions on Ioribaiwa ridge, which was retaken from the enemy, the Allied troops are pursuing the Japanese toward Nauro, ten miles north of the ridge, where the Japanese have established new defense positions.

With the conquest of Ioribaiwa ridge, which the Japanese had prepared for defense with barricades and field trenches, the Allies have started successfully the difficult task of driving the enemy back over the 88-mile trail to Buna and erase his threat to the Allied advance base at Port Moresby.

"Our advance continues," General MacArthur's communique said.

It was expected that strong resistance would be encountered near Nauro village and the creek at the base of the next mountain ridge north of Ioribaiwa.

The Japanese abandoned many supplies, a military spokesman said, but added this could not be taken as an indication they were routed.

Flank attacks by Australian troops presumably forced the Japanese to leave precipitately without a chance of wrestling equipment and supplies over the difficult terrain, he said.

Allied bombers, pursued the retreating Japanese and pounded their rear positions at Menari, four miles north of Nauro.

At the same time heavy bombers moved down the trail to Buna and destroyed six barges used to transport supplies down the coast. Other enemy installations on the

TOLL REDUCED

August Traffic Fatalities In U. S. Drop Sharply.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Fewer lives were lost in traffic accidents in the United States last month than in any August on record, the national safety council reported today.

Fatalities dropped 40 per cent below the same month a year ago, and the total of 2,310 was lower than in any August as far back as 1926, the earliest year for which national monthly totals are available.

The council said the reduction represented a saving of 1,550 lives. It reported the downward trend was general throughout the country, and that for the first time not a single state reported an increase for August.

Full Loss at Dieppe Bared By Churchill

Tank Barriers Cost Half of Allied Force In Raid, He Says.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The Allied invasion test at Dieppe met tank barriers of unforeseen strength and the attacks' losses were "very nearly half the total" of the troops involved, Prime Minister Churchill said in the house of commons today.

As at the first meeting of the reconvened house yesterday, when the prime minister emphasized the undesirability of speculation on the time and place of a second front, his reports were in answer to a battery of questioners.

He is expected shortly, however, to make a more thorough report on the war situation.

For the third time since the war began, the house received a government bill for a one-year extension of its own life. Thus the government rejected repeated demands from critics of the present commons for a general election.

Churchill said that British tanks were held up by the "altogether unexpected strength" of defense blocks placed at the ends of Dieppe's streets by the Germans.

It had not been anticipated, he added, that the barriers could not be destroyed by British guns.

Making a statement in response to questions, Churchill said the military force commander at Dieppe had described the support given by the RAF for the operations there as "faultless."

The RAF fought the greatest air battle of all time over the coastal town, destroying nearly 100 German planes for certain and possibly bringing down many more, Churchill said.

James Henderson Stewart asked the prime minister to reconcile his announcement of Sept. 8 that most of the Dieppe force returned and the official Canadian statement that of 5,000 Canadians par-

SCORES ARMY IN LOSS OF LUZON

Admiral Hart Declares Planes 'Missed Big Chance' To Cripple Japanese.

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA — Admiral Thomas C. Hart, former commander of Allied naval forces in the western Pacific, believes that army air fighters failed in the first day of the battle over Luzon and thus missed a chance to cripple Japan's drive to Java.

Hart, in an article in the Oct. 3 issue of the Saturday Evening Post, released today, also asserted that "fighters based on Oahu aerodromes missed their big chance" during the Pearl Harbor attack.

The navy "erred" at Pearl Harbor, he added, "in presenting so many targets in such small space, under the tense conditions prevailing in early December."

Soviets Admit Situation In Stalingrad Fighting Remains 'Grave.'

ENCIRCLE GERMAN FORCE

Also Claim Improvement In Caucasus; Furious Fight On For Vital Hill.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW — (INS) — Reports reaching Moscow said today that Rumanian Occupation forces had massacred 25,000 Russians in the Black Sea port of Odessa. The victims were said to have been locked in barracks then were blown up.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Front dispatches characterized the Stalingrad situation as "unabatingly grave" today but revealed that Soviet attacks on the east bank of the Don, northwest of the city, are penning large Nazi forces within the Don loop, while the Caucasus front situation was said to show "significant improvement."

The persistent Russian attacks along the Don river's eastern bank were aimed at cutting off and encircling the Nazi forces in the immediate Stalingrad battle zone.

Soviet dispatches said that this northwestern diversionary offensive was making progress and that several strong Nazi positions had been captured, nailing down an increasingly large force within the Don loop and taking a heavy toll of German men and equipment.

Within Stalingrad proper, however, the situation was described as less favorable due to powerful Nazi attacks, aimed at the capture of an important hill in the northwestern outskirts.

In the west and east Caucasus front, Russian dispatches said; "significant improvement" had occurred. Soviet troops were said to have checked German advances toward Batum and Grozny. The weather was said to be deteriorating rapidly and the Germans were believed to be in danger of bogging down.

The hill which the Nazis were attacking in Stalingrad was described as a highly strategic objective.

The hill dominates an industrial section of Stalingrad, and the Germans were recklessly try-

Nelson Gives War Production Figures, Finds We Can't Brag

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — American industry, although 14 per cent behind schedule in August, will turn out considerably more war materials than the $45,000,000,000 worth originally scheduled for 1942, an official close to Production Chief Donald M. Nelson disclosed today.

He said some estimates are running as high as $55,000,000,000, but described all such estimates as "pure guesswork at this time."

Nelson himself noted last night in his third report on progress of war production that 1942 war production "may run beyond" the $45,000,000,000 figure, which was set last spring.

Disclosing that production already "has caught up with and has passed that of Axis Europe," Nelson said "our overall program has been increased steadily" and can be increased still more through improved scheduling of specific items.

WPB officials declined, for reasons of military security, to speculate on the effect of this development on President Roosevelt's 1942 goals of 60,000 planes, 45,000 tanks, 20,000 anti-aircraft guns, and 8,000,000 tons of merchant shipping.

Despite its indication of the vast proportions of the booming production program, Nelson's report was not optimistic. It carried this appeal:

"We must do more, and we must do it in a hurry. We are

Farm Equipment Also Lost as Flames Sweep Barn on W. E. Miller Farm.

GALION—Five calves and several pieces of farming equipment were lost when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the barn on the farm tenanted by Earl Jones northeast of Galion Monday night.

Jones, who has lived on the farm which is owned by W. E. Miller, of Shelby, for 20 years, said he did not know how the fire started.

Included in the machinery which was lost was a large rubber tired tractor and harness equipment. One calf was saved by chopping a hole through the siding of the barn, but efforts to save the other livestock failed. Four horses and several cows were not in the barn at the time.

The fire was discovered by Jones' son-in-law, Cleon Rinehart. Jones could not estimate the loss, but he said the barn and contents were covered by insurance.

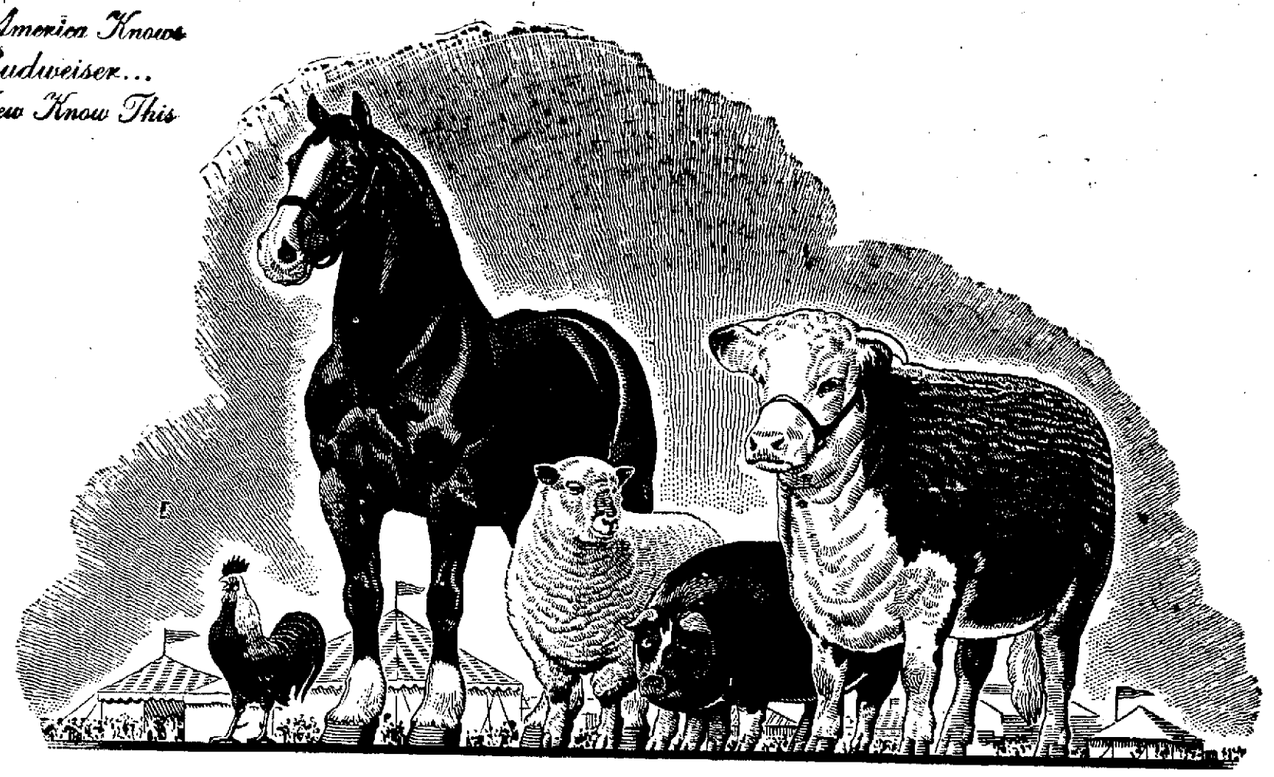
All America Knows Budweiser... but Few Know This



THEY'VE PASSED THEIR 'PHYSICAL'-TOO

America's feathered and four-legged armies are very much on their toes these days. Yeast vitamins used in fortifying animal feeds have done wonders in recent years to better the quality and propagation of livestock and poultry. Did you know that the Home of Budweiser is America's biggest single source of these vitamins?

Year after year, we have striven with research and resources to better the methods and facilities for brewing Budweiser. To do this, a laboratory specializing in fermentology and nutrition was necessary. Discoveries made in the laboratory and in the plant have led to the development of products contributing to human necessity and progress. Some of these products would appear to have only a remote relationship to brewing, yet, they are the result of scientific research into many allied fields.

Endless research in making the world's leading beer has led to other products

VITAMINS, B COMPLEX—for manufacturers of pharmaceutical and food products. Our plant is one of the world's largest sources.

VITAMIN D—Anheuser-Busch produces enough of the basic material for Vitamin D to supply the entire American market.

BAKER'S YEAST—We are one of America's biggest suppliers of standard and enriched yeasts and malt syrup used to make bread.

CORN SYRUP—many millions of pounds annually for America's candy industry.

SYRUPS—for food, table and confectionery uses and special syrups for medicinal purposes.

STARCH—for food, textile, paper and other industries—millions of pounds annually.

REFRIGERATING EQUIPMENT—for retailers of frozen foods and ice cream the country over. This division is now working all-out on glider wing and fuselage assemblies for our Armed Forces.

DIESEL ENGINES—Adolphus Busch, founder of Anheuser-Busch, acquired the first rights to manufacture this revolutionary engine in America and thus started our great Diesel industry on its way.

G. O. P. IN OHIO CONVENES FOR ONE-DAY MEET

Party Pledges to Work For 'Complete Victory' as It Drafts Platform.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio's Republicans met today (1 p. m., EWT) in a "streamline" platform convention to draft principles upon which to wage their election campaign.

Party leaders said that by elimination of various non-essentials previously a part of such meetings it would be possible to conclude the convention by tonight.

Gov. John W. Bricker, who last night told the Republican Women's organizations that women deserve tribute for their role in the war, will keynote the convention. Major Norman Imrie of Columbus is temporary chairman, and Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins of Ironton will speak in behalf of Republican congressional candidates.

Some spokesmen said that the platform, the central theme of which is expected to be a pledge for all-out cooperation in prosecution of the war, would be the shortest in party history.

Bricker, who is seeking re-election, asserted in his convention-eve speech that the party was more dependent than ever upon women's organizations because wartime restrictions prevented large gatherings. It is up to them, he added, to make a person-to-person campaign appeal.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — A Democratic leader today urged Ed D. Schorr, chairman of the Republican state central committee, to place before the Republican platform convention today a resolution asking Gov. John W. Bricker to summon the legislature to conform Ohio election laws to recent federal soldier-voting legislation.

A letter from Darrell S. Jones, Democratic chairman, said:

"In view of the urgency of this situation, and its importance to Ohioans in the armed forces, it is hoped that you will assert your recognized leadership of the Republican party organization and do whatever may be necessary to place your party on record in favor of preserving and maintaining the processes of democracy."

KNOX PRAISES BRAZIL DEFENSE

Starts Round of Conferences With Leaders at Rio, To Co-ordinate Efforts.

(By International News Service)

RIO DE JANERIO — U. S. Secretary of Navy Frank Knox, remarking that he was extremely gratified with the size and equipment of Brazilian naval bases, today started a round of conferences with government officials to better coordinate the war effort of Brazil with the United States.

The navy secretary told a press conference that great help was expected and was being received from Brazil in the United States' war efforts. He said that he has found all officials cooperative and there was a full realization that the war against the Axis was a tough proposition but all were willing and ready to face facts.

He declared Brazil was now eager to attack and not remain on the defensive. This was the impression he said he gathered at the bases he already visited and singled out the base at Natal as one of the finest he has even seen. He added that while it was not completed, it will be a tower of strength for both defense and possibly offensive operations.

In answer to questions on enemy submarine activities, Knox declared that it was still a grave menace but the United Nations were slowly gaining the upper hand. He said that searchers of the shores of French Guiana bases, in the wake of a general belief that these areas were being used by enemy warcraft, proved fruitful.

WOULD FIRE COACHES, END GRID GAMES UNTIL AFTER WAR'S OVER

(By International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Football coaches should be fired and the sport abolished until the end of the war in order to halt transportation abuses, Pennsylvania Public Utility Commissioner Richard J. Beamish asserted today.

Terming himself a former athletic director and football coach, Beamish said that school boards and college authorities "are derelict in their duty when they permit the silly business of football to prevent basic wartime training which should be a 'must' in every high school and college."

"I know that football, as far as the great mass of students is concerned, is merely an 'ersatz' sport," he asserted. "A few of the students are trained and disciplined and the remainder take out their training by sitting on the benches and yowling.

"Football coaches should be fired for the duration of this emergency and their places filled by marines or other military instructors who will build up a level of fitness to military standards."

"Youths of 18 to 21 will soon be drafted," pointed out Beamish. "They should get their preliminary training now before they go into service. American adults who gather by thousands on football fields or on racetracks set a bad example for the youth of the nation in addition to wasting oil and gasoline."

DEFENDS FOOTBALL

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Football, in comparison with other sports, makes the greatest contribution toward winning the war, said Athletic Director William Bernlohr of Capital university today in taking exception to the proposal of a Pennsylvania utilities commissioner that football be abolished for the duration of the war.

DISCREPANCY IN COMMODITY PRICE PROBED

House Committee 'Interested' In Statement There'll Be No Labor Shortage.

WASHINGTON — Nearing the end of a six-month investigation of the farm labor situation, the house agriculture committee turned today to what farmers called "too wide a margin" between prices paid to farmers for their commodities and prices paid by consumers for the same goods.

Only one more witness, War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson, remained to be heard in the labor inquiry. The date of his appearance was uncertain, but Chairman Fulmer (DSC) said the committee hoped to hear from him this week so it could start soon on the cost-of-distribution investigation.

"We want to hear from Mr. Nelson the reasons behind his recent statement that there will be no food shortage," Fulmer said. "Apparently he has some information we have been unable to obtain during our questioning of Secretary Wickard, General Hershey and Mr. McNutt."

Wickard, secretary of agriculture, told the committee last week it would be necessary to cope with a food shortage unless something was done quickly about the farm labor scarcity, and Paul McNutt, head of the war manpower commission, and Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service head, voiced concern over the effect of the labor shortage on food production.

Fulmer said the committee would submit shortly recommendations based on its finding in the labor inquiry. They were expected to include a suggestion for enactment of some form of legislation, possibly a national service act, to slow down the exodus of workers from farms.

The distribution costs investigation was decided on at the insistence of Representative Page (D-Ga), who declared farmers were "unfairly being accused by some people of being responsible for the increase in food costs."

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Max Gordon is strictly a one-telephone producer in Hollywood. One telephone in a cubbyhole office with a scarred desk where he can put his feet when he answers the phone—himself.

Coons

All this is highly irregular, for a producer in Hollywood is nobody unless he has a secretary or two, a buzzer, and a brace of telephones. Max Gordon is highly irregular, himself, among Broadway producers. He has hits, which is something in any year, and a miracle in this.

His foremost current hit, "My Sister Eileen," is the reason he's in Hollywood. The play brought $225,000 for its film rights, and Max Gordon is here while Director Alexander Hall transfers it to the screen as a vehicle for Rosalind Russell. His other top piece is "Junior Miss," also up for screening, and already a radio show for Shirley Temple.

A COMPARATIVE stranger to Hollywood himself, Gordon has been represented here abundantly by his plays, most of which have been screened. These included "The Cat and the Fiddle," "Pride and Prejudice," "Design for Living," "The Great Waltz," "Roberta," "The Shining Hour," and "Dodsworth." He served as film producer on his "Abe Lincoln in Illinois"—which he characterizes as an artistic triumph that nobody would pay to see.

"My Sister Eileen" in film form will be virtually the stage play—with excursions outside the one set (the sisters' basement apartment in Greenwich Village) and an expended love interest. In the movies they've gotta have love, so the role of the young editor, Brian Aherne, has been developed.

FIFTY, Gordon started in the theater as press agent for a burlesque company. He has seen the Broadway stage in the doldrums before. His explanation for the current fade-outs:

"Back in 1910, when I was in burlesque, I remember seeing 'The Easiest Way,' a shocker because it was sex stuff. In the big scene the man opened the door to the girl's bedroom and the audience was electrified by the implication. In the last war sex was still an item. But things have changed since then—sex has lost its shock appeal. And today you read what's going on in the world—in the war—and everything else is dwarfed. Events move so swiftly authors are bewildered and don't know what to write. They're on solid ground in comedy—and in the past."

Mrs. Miller was admitted to the hospital for treatment of an arm injury and was later released.

The error was made in reports compiled by hospital attaches and submitted to the News-Journal by them.

Madison-Orrville Game Gets Top Billing This Week

Sport Podge by REX HESS

And still the parade goes on—the parade of Mansfield sports figures marching away to the armed service.

Well, other boys are marching away, and the sports figures are deserving of neither more nor less credit than their comrades in arms. But this page is concerned with sports, and the boys who have had the headlines here are deserving of mention once again as they march away.

They leave behind them the ever-growing problem of what's to happen to sports in Mansfield in the immediate future.

Just glancing over that list of boys leaving this week from Draft Board 1, we find the names of Bob Parr, softballer, Chuck Saprano city league basketball referee, Dick Schwab, B-league golfer, and George Wintersteen of Mansfield Athletic Supply, one of the city's foremost sport fans.

There are probably others in the list whose names escaped me in looking them over.

As they leave, we'll just remind them
Of the sports they leave behind them.

Chuck Saprano's departure leaves the city basketball league without a whistle tooter. Joe Atton, the league's other striped-shirt gentleman, has been in the air force these two months past.

Long Tom Farrell, generally recognized as one of the best basketball officials in these parts, might be available for the city league job but for one thing—Tom is threatening to don cage togs and do a little performing himself this winter for Blue Goose.

Says the former House of David star: "With all these youngsters marching away, I don't know why we old men can't get a little fun out of the game again."

Will there be a city basketball league this winter? Prospects are good right now.

Johnny Fike at the Y M C A. is attempting to get the league organized this winter, and has left playing time open on the "Y" schedule for one of two nights at the choice of the league.

Mansfield softball players were well pleased with the way John operated the city leagues and the playoff series this summer, after taking over in mid-season when Don Cram left for the service. His offer to conduct the basketball race is a war-time life saver for the city league which has had a struggle to survive during the past two seasons at the high school, and could hardly expect to have much success on the same court in these times.

If the league can be organized on something resembling industrial lines, it should prosper this winter at th. "Y" gym.

Galion Club Wants Mansfield Stars

Galion Jaycees football team, opening their season Sunday against the Marion ordnance plant are looking for former members of the Mansfield City News club to strengthen their lineup.

Al Schwaner, ace ball carrier of the Mansfield club of last season, already has joined the Galion team, it was announced yesterday.

The Jaycees this season are coached by Bob Monnett, the former Bucyrus high school Michigan State college and Green Bay Packer star who one year led the entire nation in scoring while at Michigan State.

Hostak Fails In Comeback Effort

SEATTLE, Wash.—(AP)—Al Hostak, twice the National Boxing association middleweight champion, failed last night in his attempt to come back from nearly a year's retirement.

Harry (Kid) Matthews, formerly of Emmett, Idaho, scored a clean cut 10-round decision through the medium of a jabbing left that chopped away continually at the former champ's body and chin.

It was a victory for a sharp-shooting boxer over a slugger who never had a chance to get set for his Sunday punch. Hostak weighed 162½ to Matthew's 166.

Cooper, Ruffing Picked

Capacity Crowd of 35,000 Fans Expected.

By GAYLE TALBOT

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—It was Mort Cooper, peerless 22-game winner of the St. Louis Cardinals, against Rufus (The Red) Ruffing, 37-year-old right-hander of the New York Yankees, when the champions of the National league and the champions of the American league, respectively, tied into each other in the opening game of the 1942 world series today at Sportman's park.

A crowd of just under 35,000, the utmost capacity of the park, was sure to be on hand when the two league champions inaugurated the annual playoff at 2:30 p. m. (EWT). Every reserved chair was sold more than a week ago, and speculators were getting handsome premiums for the seats that had come into their possession—up to $50 for choice locations.

In the opinion of old stagers, it promised to develop into one of the bitterest world series in history, probably to be fought right down to the last gasp. Nobody would be surprised if it went the limit of seven games. While most of the experts thought the Yankees would win eventually, few of them predicted it would be an easy victory.

The Cardinals have too much class for that. Those who have been following Billy Southworth's bravos as they made their sensational stretch drive to beat out the Brooklyn Dodgers declare unanimously that they are capable of beating anybody—including the Yankees. Those who have seen the most of the Cards lately are highest in praise of the wild-running kids, and are the ones who like their chances the best against the resplendent Yankees. Which might, or might not, be significant.

There was, to tell the truth, an agreeable surprise in St. Louis last night when the word arrived, in advance of the Yankees themselves, that Ruffing had been named by Manager Joe McCarthy to hurl the first game for the Yanks.

For some obscure reason, the locals decided the Cards were getting a big break in facing an old-timer like Ruffing in the first heat.

The second series game was scheduled to be played here tomorrow, and after a day's lapse they were due to continue the battle at Yankee stadium on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Columbus Takes Little Classic

By BOB WILSON

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—(AP)—The Columbus Red Birds—winners of the 1942 little world series—reign for another year as nominal monarchs of two of baseball's highest caliber minor leagues.

The American association club, a farm of the pennant-winning St. Louis Cardials, captured its second straight junior series last night by defeating the International league Syracuse Chiefs, 4-2.

The victory gave Manager Eddie Dyer's club, which finished third behind Kansas City and Milwaukee in the regular season standings, the series four games to one. They battled their way through 16 play-off games to victory and a series "pot" of $5,356.75.

The western team's triumph gave the American association a 14-11 edge in the annual post-season series dating back to 1904. The Red Birds last year beat Montreal for the title.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — Wide World — Just to give you an idea what the Cardinals are up against, they came from ten games behind on Aug. 5 to cop the pennant by winning 43 of 52 games . . . During the same stretch the Red Sox won 35 out of 42 and gained only 3½ games on the Yankees . . . Joe McCarthy says the Yanks haven't bothered about scouting their World Series rivals, but they've been taking lessons from Buddy Hassett, an ex-National leaguer . . . Add Travel Troubles: Funnyman Al Schacht, who just opened a restaurant here, didn't make the trip to St. Louis but he'll perform at the three games in the Stadium.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Dan Parker, New York Daily Mirror: "In peace time this would be known as the rubber series between the Cards and the Yankees. But what with war time conservation, priorities, etc., this year's post-season playoffs will simply have to be satisfied with the designation of the butadiene series."

Brothers Try To Halt Yanks

Cooper Boys Possess Confidence in Ability.

By CARL LUNDQUIST

ST LOUIS—(AP)—A couple of nerveless country boys formed the first brother battery in world series history today.

It was Morton Cooper, 28, on the throwing end, and Walker Cooper, 27, on the receiving end for the St Louis Cardinals. It was their first big money assignment, but neither expressed fear of the Yankees.

"Nobody has beaten them in a world series since the Cardinals did it in 1926 and I think it is high time that we did it again," Mort said. "They may be better than we are, but they'll have to show me they are."

Morton's confidence was reflected in Walker's calm demeanor. Both confessed they never missed a wink of sleep during the stretch run when the Cardinals in a 43-day drive under pressure won 36 out of 40 games to win the National league pennant.

Morton said there was not a great deal of difference between the Yankees and the Dodgers and that he expected to pitch about the same way to them as he did to Brooklyn. He beat the pressure-seasoned Dodgers five times, shutting them out in three of the games. The only game he lost to them was a seven-inning seven-hitter, which was called because of dimout regulations along the Atlantic seaboard.

The Coopers who come from Independence, Mo., may furnish as much color for the Cardinals as Dizzy and Paul Dean, the pitching brothers, who led them in their 1934 series triumph over Detroit.

Like the Deans, the Coopers are earthy youths. They talk with a countrified drawl and shy from crowds, publicity and night life. They like to talk about the folks from home or livestock prices.

Walker, the younger brother, furnishes the brains and Morton the power. Walker knows the batting weaknesses of every major leaguer. He is skinny, built like a pitcher and used to be one. Paradoxically, Morton is slab-shouldered, weighs 20 pounds more than Walker and looks like he might be a first class catcher. That is the way the brother battery began when playing pasture baseball on Sundays in towns around Independence.

Clouts Maples For 656 Transportation Series.

Phil Warga was out after the wood last night as he led the Transportation league with a 656 total at Colony bowling alleys on games of 245-178-233, for both games and total honors.

Five of the six matches in the league wound up in shutout victories. The Frank Williams quintet winner of a 2-1 decision over Motor Cargo, dropped into a three-way tie for first place with Schenk Auto and Ritz Nite club.

LYONS GOES AFTER SIXTH STRAIGHT WIN

CHICAGO —(AP)— Ted Lyons, 41 year old pitching veteran of the Chicago White Sox who in the last five ayers has whipped the Cubs five successive times in city series starts, bids for his sixth in a row today as the Cross Town rivals open their annual fall series.

Lyans, who won 14 games and lost 7 this season, will be opposed by Big Bill Lee, winner of 18 and loser of the same number.

Speedy Backs Meet Saturday

Hoosiers and Buckeyes Own Dangerous Runners.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Two speedy backfields will collide Saturday in the opening game of the Western Conference football title race—the Indiana-Ohio State meeting at Columbus—but ultimate victory may be decided in the lines.

Both Bo McMillin of Indiana and Paul Brown of Ohio State watched their numerous and talented backs, many of them sophomores, measure up to initial expectations last week as the Buckeyes routed Fort Knox, 59-0, and the Hoosiers trounced Butler, 53-0.

What they weren't so sure of after these opening tests were the forward lines. Ohio State held Fort Knox to 14 yards by rushing and Indiana limited Butler to 55, which was impressive enough but came against weak opposition. They expect a better answer this week.

Last Saturday the Buckeyes used a starting line of five juniors, a senior and a sophomore, four of whom were letter winners. Indiana had five letter winners among its six juniors and a sophomore as well as a slight edge in weight.

Billy Hillenbrand, Indiana's sophomore sensation last year, stands out as the No. 1 man in either backfield. However, McMillin also has a strong mixture of other veterans and sophomores and first year men accounted for seven touchdowns in the Hoosier opener.

Ohio State likewise appears to have a plentiful supply of backs with a 190 pound sophomore, Gene Fekete, outshining the rest in play thus far. Working with the all letter man combination of Les Horvath, Paul Sarringhaus and Capt George Lynn, he scored two touchdowns and added three points after touchdown last week. His understudy, Dick Palmer, also scored twice and Sophomores accounted for two other markers.

A victory for Indiana would be its first over the Buckeyes Since 1937 when the Hoosiers won, 10-0.

Rams Seek Revenge Over Red Rider Club

Mansfield Travels To Sandusky Where Dope Indicates Tossup

ORRVILLE high school's Red Riders invade Madison field Friday night for the top game of the week for gridiron fans of Mansfield and the immediate vicinity.

Mansfield high's Tygers travel to Sandusky, but wartime travel conditions will cut down the number of fans following the Tygers to the Blue Streak lair, and those who stay home can do much worse than take in the Ram-Rider fracas.

The tilt is looked upon as the big home game of the season for Madison, and the Ram stands are expected to be filled to capacity. While the two teams did not meet last season, Orrville chalked up victories in the two preceding campaigns, and Madison will be out for revenge.

The rival clubs go into the battle undefeated, Madison having scored a decisive victory over New London in its only game to date, while Orrville defeated Coventry 6-0 and won from Rittman, 14-12.

Coach Al Fendrick has been spending the past two weeks trying to develop reserve strength for his Rams, and while his starting lineup may not be changed, Al has his eye on several boys ticketed for considerable service.

There's no secret that the Rams will depend on a running and passing attack, with Harold Hammer and Bob Anthony doing a large part of the chucking and running.

The two teams will be about evenly matched in weight, but Orville may have a little edge in experience with eight lettermen in the starting lineup. But Madison also is well stocked with veteran players, and it promises to be an interesting, well-played ball game.

Mansfield will be meeting another team out for revenge when the Tygers go to Sandusky. Last year the Tygers walloped the Blue Streaks 32-0, and while Sandusky has been defeated in both of its games this year, by Collinwood and Lorain, both strong teams, the Streaks have taken heart since Mansfield's defeat by Elyria.

The dope would have this game as another tossup, and Mansfield fans are crossing their fingers and hoping that it will not be the same sort of tossup which the Elyria debacle developed.

Shelby opens its North Central Ohio league season Friday at Galion, and here again the dope indicates two evenly matched teams that are showing steady progress under new coaches. Both lost their opening games, and both came through last week with upset victories, Shelby edging Willard and Galion nosing out Crestline.

Bellville, trounced last week by Fredericktown, takes on another toughie in Loudonville Friday afternoon at Bellville. But Bellville isn't discouraged. The passing combination of Eldon Leedy to Joe Watkins has given them something to cheer about, and will carry their hopes against the Red Birds.

There's be action all around the N. C. O. loop this week-end. Ashland, favored for the league title, invades Bucyrus Friday, where they'll find a crippled band of Red Men awaiting them.

Bucyrus has lost Chuck Shuck, senior and veteran halfback, out with torn shoulder muscles. Taynor, first string fullback, who has an injured knee. Gatchell, right tackle, also with a bad knee. Landis, with a bad ankle, Teets, second string tackle who has an abscess on the knee, big Harold Smith, laid up with a stomach disorder, and the latest on the list, Bob Davis, first string halfback, who has an infection developing from a boil.

Marion, doped as the team to give Ashland its toughest battle, is picked to win its loop opener at Mt Vernon, where the Yellow Jackets have gotten away to a bad start by losing their first two games.

Among the remaining schools on Mansfield's schedule, Massillon has the toughest assignment, meeting Lincoln, Neb., state champions for the past six years, and several times claimants of the Missouri Valley title.

Portsmouth takes on Dayton Roosevelt, Toledo Woodward plays at Toledo Waite, Springfield tangles with Ironton.

Gophers Meet Bierman Team

Minnesota Win Streak Threatened Saturday.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Bernie Bierman today set about to wreck a great string of football victories that he spent two years in helping to build.

Under Bierman's direction the University of Minnesota won the final game of the 1939 campaign, added eight more triumphs in 1940 and then swept through eight more contests a season ago to run the string to 17 consecutive victories.

With Bierman now in the military service, Dr. George Hauser took over the Gophers' head coaching job. Last week-end Minnesota opened with a 50 to 7 victory over Pittsburgh to run the triumphant skein to 18 in a row.

In the Mid-West's top game Saturday, Bierman now a lieutenant colonel in the marines on loan to the navy, takes the powerful Iowa City Naval Pre-Flight team to Minneapolis to face Minnesota.

The Naval Cadets trampled Kansas 61 to 0 in their inaugural and then last week-end downed Northwestern 20 to 12. That gave Bierman the distinction of being the winning coach in 19 consecutive games and now either his personal streak or that of the Minnesota team that he steered into national prominence will come to an end shortly.

The Cadets boast some of the biggest name stars to play for Mid-Western colleges in recent season and on the basis of early season showings rank as the section's No. 1 grid combination.

While the Cadets attempt to prolong their unbeaten record another service team, Great Lakes, seeks to regain a bit of lost prestige when it meets the University of Iowa. Great Lakes was topped 9 to 0 last week by Michigan in the wee's top upset. Iowa won from Nebraska 27 to 0.

Outside the activity of the service teams, the week's schedule is featured by the first conference battle of the Big Ten. It pits Indiana against Ohio State at Columbus. Both won their openers easily, the Hoosiers downing Butler 53 to 0 and the Bucks besting Fort Knox 59 to 0.

* * *

In the other Mid-Western games Michigan State; Butler tangles with Illinois; Northwestern meets Texas in an intersectional contest: Notre Dame engages Georgia Tech; Purdue plays at Vanderbilt, and Wisconsin battles Marquette.

CHAPTER VIII

"Oh, he went down last week with Mother and Dad," Fran said. "You know Ron and I have always gone down by ship until this year, but the war . . . This year we have to go by train and Ron wanted to stop off overnight and see how you were getting along. Are your drinks ready, darling? Thanks. Just what I need. This room was all we could get. You can't turn around in here and the service is terrible."

Temple sat on the bed and Ron sank into a chair. Fran turned to her trunk again. "This is the worst packing job I've ever seen. Everything will be ruined when I get there. But you can't get a decent maid now."

Ron smiled half-heartedly. "Don't pay any attention to her, Temple. She's always griping . . . How are you doing? Do you know anybody? How's the job?"

Fran turned around. "Have you met any 'nice' people, Temple? I should think it would be difficult to discriminate when you work in an office and are thrown with all sorts of girls."

Temple took a deep breath. "The girls in the office are nice people, Fran. They've helped me and covered up my mistakes. They've been strangers, too here."

"Oh, yes, of course," Fran said with a tolerant smile. "But I mean . . ."

"Temple knows what you mean," Ron said flatly.

Temple looked down at the drink in her hand, hating the polite heckling between husband and wife which disguised larger differences. For the first time since Ron and Fran had been going on their pleasant, luxurious way and she had been fighting her new and bitter way Temple felt no envy. Rather she felt they would envy her if they knew her inner glow. She did not want to be Ron going to Florida to get fatter and lazier. She did not want to be Fran going to Florida with new clothes and blonder hair. She thought, "I want to be Temple Graves who will see Jud tomorrow night."

"Any boy friends?" Ron asked.

She glanced up quickly. "Oh, yes," she said, smiling. "Even a boy friend."

"Not bad . . . but don't get serious. Don't, for God's sake, be a war bride."

"What are you doing about it—the war, I mean, and defense?"

He made a grimace intended to be a smile. "My ball and chain," he said, nodding to Fran, "and my little ball and chain in Miami."

"And you're the boss' son-in-law."

"Yeah. Dandy isn't it?"

"I don't see anything the matter with it," Fran said. "You don't know when you're lucky."

"You wouldn't see anything the matter with it. All the war means to you is that the servant problem is getting worse and you can't go to Florida by sea and you have to buy clothes made in America."

"Oh, don't be tiresome, darling. You're boring, Temple."

"I bore myself. Let's have another drink. Then Temple can tell us where her boy friend takes her to dinner."

"I want to go to the Mayflower," Fran said.

"My master's voice, Temple."

"I went there Sunday," Temple said.

Ron nodded. "My wife approves of your boy friend." He glanced aside, seeing Fran going to the bathroom with a dress over her arm. "My God! She's changing her dress again!"

Obviously it was a pleasant evening for Ron who always found living pleasant if the food was good, the drinks plentiful and the chairs comfortable. It was also pleasant for Fran, who sparkled in a place where she was most likely to be seen by "nice" people and where the size of the bill told her that she had not depreciated her fashionable self by having dined there.

Ron and Fran had excellent company manners, Temple thought. In public they spoke endearingly to each other, and Fran never missed the opportunity to refer proudly and lovingly to her son in hearing of total strangers she most wanted to impress.

Before their sham and before her own growing sense of superiority Temple felt herself becoming quieter. Suddenly the thought flashed, "Jud and I won't be like this . . . To marry him . . . Oh, but it was absurd to think of it so soon! I thought it would be years and years before I married and now in five weeks I want to get married. After the war? We're not in it yet and it may go on for years . . . Before he goes then? A war bride? . . . No, I don't want to be that. I loathe the idea of being that!"

"Temple, would you care for anything so unromantic as dancing with your brother?"

"Of course, Ron."

When they were dancing, he said with surprising soberness, "Mother writes very cheerful letters. She would. She said you had been sending her money. I don't know how you do it and I don't know why the devil you should. I feel like an awful heel about my family."

"You have your own family. Mother won't let you take on hers."

"Yes, and the way taxes are going to be, we'll have to cut down." He chuckled, "Oh, you know, one less car or so, one less yacht or so and maybe a wing on one of the houses closed. You're doing okay, kid. I'm proud of you. You're doing a hell of a lot more than I've ever done."

"You sound unhappy. You are lucky in many respects."

"Am I? Maybe. We're going to Florida all dressed up like Mrs. Astor's pet horses because the old man has stock in a company that is making submarine parts. Submarines that send people to their deaths are taking Mr. and Mrs. Graves and son to Florida for the season. . . ."

Temple looked up and smiled. "I believe you're acquiring a conscience, Ron."

He chuckled again. "Um . . . Down in Florida I'll burn on one side and then the other, making sure that I'm the same color all over. If I'm not, it will be the worst thing that can happen to me. A major tragedy. Everybody will talk about me. 'Poor Ron, something happened to his tan this year. It isn't even. Have you seen it? Poor job. Very poor job.' And I'll watch my boy play on the sand with a lot of other little boys who are in Florida because their fathers manufacture things to kill other little boys playing in the sand . . . I must be drunk. I never talked so much in my life. But I don't want to go to Florida. I want to do something constructive for defense."

"You never talked as much to me."

"That's because you're not home. At home you're my little sister who isn't supposed to know that all is not sweetness and light in the world. Here you're—you're a pretty girl I'm dancing with. You're nicer than you were. Or were you always nice?"

"I'm nicer."

"You're okay. I am, too, but I won't be if I have another drink. Besides, you should be in bed. You're a working girl."

"If you want to do something constructive for defense, why don't you?"

"You said I was lucky. Remember?"

They said good-bye in a taxi outside Temple's boarding house where, for an instant, Fran concentrated hard upon the size, appearance and location of the house.

She said to Temple, "Good-bye, darling. It's been grand seeing you. I do wish you could come along with us. It would do you so much good. But when I get back—I have lots of clothes. If you wouldn't be offended."

Temple stiffened. "Oh, I have plenty, thanks. Send them to one of the war relief agencies."

She stepped out of the taxi, seeing them briefly before the taxi drove off. Fran was looking somewhat startled. Ron looked only sleepy.

Temple that night wrote a cheerful letter to her mother. Now there was no forced cheerful letter to her mother. Now there was no forced cheer in it. In part she wrote, "I've been invited to spend the week-end at Mrs. Wayne's farm in Virginia. We're driving down Saturday afternoon."

She slept soundly, waking to remember Jud's long, tender kiss.

Paula drove in a way that made you glad you had been spared, after you had reached your destination.

But they had not yet reached their destination—Paula's farm. Temple was thinking that Paula's entering the boarding house—not coming in, really, but bursting in like a flame—had caused more excitement than anything that had happened since Temple had been living there. Paula's deep voice had made itself heard even in Mrs. Benson's little office; she had been like a bright bird in an aviary of dull, feathered companions.

Paula had talked almost incessantly on the trip, meanwhile loudly blaming other motorists for her own, unconscious mistakes in driving. Temple watched the countryside made desolate by winter. But she was thinking of Jud. She was always thinking of him now, wrapping her love about her as a protector against the cold which penetrated the shiny new gray car, thinking of last night and the night before and the dear, foolish things they had said to each other.

But they had made no promises, she thought. For them there could be no promises. They could look back, but not ahead. A man who claimed to be a frustrated artist had so arranged it that a boy and girl in Washington in 1941 could not promise each other anything.

"I'm really going in for farming seriously this year," Paula was saying. "Heretofore I've had planted what I thought was pretty. Imagine, planting what I thought was pretty! When the tenant farmer suggested certain crops I always asked, 'What does it look like? Will it be becoming to the house?' He probably thought I was nuts. But no more of that. I don't know what potatoes look like when they're growing or whether they grow inside or out, but I'm going to have potatoes—lots of them. Mamie, the tenant's wife, will be there getting our dinner. She's never owned a cook book, but she can run rings around the chef in the hotel. Are you warm enough, dear?"

"I'm quite comfortable," Temple said.

Paula laughed. "Poor baby! You are probably wondering why in heaven's name you let yourself be dragged off on a wild chase like this when you could be having an exciting evening with Jud. Oh, I know all about that! I can spot a girl in love a block off. But I never give any advice on romantic matters, so please don't ask for any. I have listened to more wrecked love affairs than any woman dead or alive. And why, you are asking yourself, does she pick on me?"

She turned her head quickly and smiled. "Can't I have a school girl crush? Why can't I? One of the good points in reaching my peculiar station in life is that I may choose my friends . . . Have you ever seen such driving? Really, I don't see how half of them keep from exterminating themselves? Be a good thing if they would. It would at least clear the roads for people who try to be as careful as I am . . . Temple, what are you and Jud going to do about the draft?"

Temple tucked her chin in the collar of her beaver jacket.

"I don't like the word 'draft'."

"I don't either."

"He is going to wait until his time comes and then he is going."

"Why doesn't he enlist? He can choose his field then."

PRICES SHIFT UNEVENLY ON DAY'S MARKET

Production and Trade Index Jumps Two Points to New Record Percentage.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock prices shifted unevenly today but the market's undertone was steady.

Slightly higher were Santa Fe, Woolworth, Radio and Texas Co. Goodrich and Consolidated Edison were a shade lower on the initial transactions. N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, American Telephone and Anaconda were unchanged.

Market students studied the seasonally adjusted index of production and trade computed at the federal reserve bank of New York. This showed a rise of 2 points in August to a record high of 120 per cent of estimated long term trend. During the month there was a continuation of recovery in the retail trade which got under way in July and an additional 7 point rise in the output of producers' durable goods.

LOUDONVILLE — The silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Derrenberger was celebrated recently at their home.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, October 1

CONTINUED ACTIVITY of a most progressive order is forecast from this day's lnuar and mutual aspects. Especially should all pertaining to writings, publishing, advertising, promotions, as well as journeys, agencies nd communications flourish. Opportunities through such sources should gain popularity and prestige, particularly with those in position and financial standing. However, all contacts should be cleverly handled with an eye to security and integrity, since there is menace of fraud, subtlety, intrigue and other sinister designs, this in personal as well as private associations.

Those whose birthday it is are to enjoy the opportunity of expanding their interests, financial standing and personal popularity and influence, particularly through any instruments or writings, publicity, promotions, transportation, agencies and communciations. Brilliant success in any capacity is assured, if a wary and shrewd observation be used to detect and defeat all sorts of treacheries, intrigues, subtlety and under current dangers. This applies to personal as well as business relations. In social, affectional and cultural contacts there should be much pleasure and gratification. Some discretion is advised.

A child born on this day is likely to have many brilliant talents, with unusual versatility in literature, art, music and other cultural forms. It should be popular and enjoy a pleasant and successful career.

MACKENZIE IN ENGLAND TO SEE WAR FIRST HAND

Wide World Analyst to Write 'War Today' From Abroad Starting Thursday.

(By Wide World)

LONDON—A tall, heavily built man with steel-gray hair, whose eyes and quick movements scarcely concealed his impatience to be on the go, stepped out of an airplane in England after a trans-Atlantic flight from New York.

DeWitt MacKenzie, Wide World's war analyst, had come back to surroundings as familiar to him as Rockefeller Center, New York, yet no more familiar than the continent of Europe, the Egyptian desert, or mysterious India. He has followed the trail of news round the globe for a quarter century.

Behind him—since the Nazis invaded Poland on Sept. 1, 1939—were 870 columns, "The War Today," totaling some 550,000 words all branded with the penetrative knowledge, intuition and objectivity which comes of long experience and study. Many of his columns have appeared in The News-Journal.

Ahead lay thousands of miles of travel—in England, Ireland, Scotland, the Middle East and other points.

The first of MacKenzie's special articles from abroad will appear in The News-Journal Thursday and regularly thereafter, except when travel to a distant point in the war zones or other unavoidable circumstance prevents.

MacKenzie, a native of Vermont and the son of a minister, attended Syracuse university, joined the Associated Press in 1910 after two years of newspaper work in upstate New York and began his long career as a foreign correspondent by covering the Irish Easter rebellion of 1916

Later MacKenzie was one of the "big seven" war correspondents attached to British general headquarters during that first World war. He watched the fighting around Suez and wrote dispatches which the military praised highly for their clarity and intelligence.

He went to India for six months to investigate reports of a rebellion. He rode with British troops rounding up savage tribesmen near the Khyber pass. He attended the 1916 conference of native princes. But there was no revolution.

After the war MacKenzie covered the Versailles peace conference. Then he returned to the London AP bureau where, in 1931, he got an exclusive interview with J. P. Morgan about England's momentous decision to go off the gold standard. One of the first interviews the financier ever had given.

In 1933 MacKenzie returned to the United States and was chief of the Associated Press foreign service for three years.

He started writing a foreign affairs column in 1936 and in 1938 returned to Europe and followed Prime Minister Chamberlain to the historic Munich conference over the fate of Czechoslovakia.

When the British policy of appeasement was effected, MacKenzie toured 14 of the countries marked by Hitler's victory, including Poland, Hungary and the Balkan states, France and Italy

He was first to break the news that the Anglo-French allies had finally abandoned appeasement as a policy.

His present tour fits in with his views of the necessary background for an analyst

"If you've been in Turkey and know the way the Turk mind works, you're in a much better position to know how something they do is going to influence the war," he says by way of illustration.

MacKenzie has had personal contact with many of the world's leading statesmen But off his guard, Mac sometimes is prouder of the fact that he holds a brown-trout record in Ireland

Meat Today:

Learn more cuts

Our fighting forces, our allies and our workers need meat.

The Government has asked consumers to limit their use of meat to 2½ pounds per person per week.

There are two voluntary ways you yourself can help to stretch the available supply and still keep the good nutritional value of meat on the table.

1. Know the cuts available from day to day.
2. Continue to serve meat as often as possible—even though you serve less per meal.

Whenever your meat-man does not have your favorite cuts or kinds of meat he will be glad to help you select cuts which may be new to your table but which contain the same nutrients and which have that good meat flavor.

MEAT AND MODERN NUTRITION

Since the last war meat has been discovered to be a source of essential B vitamins (thiamine, riboflavin and niacin).

Also there has developed a new appreciation of the complete high-quality proteins of meat as well as the minerals of meat (iron, copper, phosphorus).

These nutritional essentials are not stored in the body to any appreciable extent and must be supplied regularly by your daily meals.

Government officials who are concerned with the nutritional needs of the nation recommend meat as a regular part of the diet.

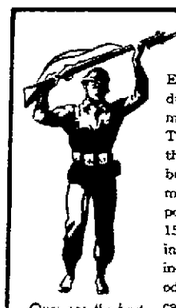
Both on fighting fronts and at home meat is considered important to good morale as well as to good nutrition. Few other foods so satisfy the "inner man."

Recognizing these facts, military meal planners endeavor to provide our fighters with nearly a pound of meat per man per day.

People just naturally want meat—both for the dinner pail and the home table.

Our fighters, our allies, our workers and our families need it. Make the most of it.

RATIONING IS SHARING—Under rationing it is the Government's plan that the American people shall all share in the benefits of meat.



Ours are the best fed fighting forces in the world

MEAT INDUSTRY PREPARED

Even before Pearl Harbor, the industry had geared itself up to tremendously increased demands. This year (June, 1942—July, 1943) the industry is producing a record-breaking 24 billion pounds of meat, as compared with 20 billion pounds the previous year and only 15 to 17 billion pounds a year during the last war. Recently also the industry has pioneered new methods of shipping meat with less cargo space All this has been done efficiently, and without government loans.

How consumers can make the most of meat by voluntary rationing and cooperate with the Government ▶ Plan meals so your available supply of meat is well distributed over the week. On the basis of 2½ pounds per person you can enjoy 10 to 15 nutritious, satisfying meat meals per week.

▶ In addition to the 2½ pounds per week of beef, pork, lamb, veal, smoked meats and sausage—you can serve liver, sweetbreads, tongue, kidneys, brains and hearts (since these meats are not included in the voluntary rationing plan). Also, you can serve such foods as poultry and fish.

(All meat contains complete high-quality proteins, B vitamins and important minerals.)

▶ Learn to make delicious dishes out of available cuts—even if you have never cooked them before.

▶ Your meat-man knows meats. He can be of great service to you. Ask him to help you.

▶ Get out your cookbooks. Go over them. You will find many ideas you have never tried.

▶ Keep your eye on the food pages of newspapers and magazines. Follow radio suggestions.

▶ And be sure to get the booklets offered below. They tell you how to prepare many unfamiliar cuts. They tell you how to conserve meat by cooking at low, even temperatures.

Serve meat regularly—as good nutrition demands—and remember: Meat is a basic food—make every pound count.

Now is the time to know more about the many available cuts and kinds of meat and how to prepare them

SOVIETS CLAIM 'DIVERSION' TO NORTH GAINING

Admit Situation in Stalingrad Fighting Still Remains 'Unabatably Grave.'

ing to seize it, over a carpet of their own dead.

The steppes from the Don to the Volga above Stalingrad, where the Russian counter-offensive was rolling toward the bend of the Don, were a sea of flames. The Germans had set the tinder-like steppes—grasses afire, hoping to stop the Russians.

Fearful of night attacks, they dropped parachute flares where there was no brush and counter-attacked vainly.

Heavy autumn weather besieged the western Caucasus and the snow line rapidly crept down the sides of the mountains. The battle mounted, ever more fierce, as German crack Alpine troops, veterans of the Greek and Yugoslav campaigns desperately tried to take the mountain passes before violent blizzards begin.

Soviet airmen, swooping dangerously low, pinned the invaders to the mountains.

Black sea marines, in a daring Commando raid, penetrated to the center of Novorossisk—the Black sea naval base now held by the Germans—wrecked artillery batteries and sowed a general panic.

The Russians destroyed 10 artillery batteries last night in their counter-offensive above Stalingrad.

In street fighting inside Stalingrad, the Germans have not advanced a step, it was said.

Izvestia, a government newspaper, described one battle near the Volga in which 170 German tanks had advanced in close formation across the open steppe, supported by masses of aircraft. The Russians, their back to the river, were hampered in efforts to bring up reinforcements and found it increasingly difficult to parry thrusts that shifted rapidly from one section to another.

At dawn, the Germans began an intensive bombing of Soviet forward positions and batteries. They bombed for two hours in an effort to blast out Soviet infantry, guns and anti-tank barriers, section by section. At noon, tanks in groups of 30 each, charged.

The Russians fought off the planes and tanks with mobile anti-aircraft and field guns. These guns were rushed from one danger spot to another quickly and usually kept the bombers at a respectable altitude.

The Germans also used masses of artillery, and were estimated to have 25 artillery regiments in the Stalingrad area.

The Community party organ Prvada said the Germans were making more than 1,500 air sorties a day.

(Radio Vichy, usually inaccurate, said the greater part of Stalingrad was in German hands, and that the Germans had bombed the Soviet far northern port of Archangel.)

Heavy battles had flared again in the Mozdok area of the Terek river valley, in the Caucasus where the Germans were trying to drive to the valuable Grozny oil fields. The noon communique reported that enemy attacks had been beaten off in this area, and that four tanks, nine trucks and a battalion (500 men) of German infantry had been destroyed.

Hitler Opens Winter Relief Program

BULLETIN

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts) —(AP)— Field Marshal Erwin Rommel and 10,000 German wounded assembled in the Sportspalast today to hear Adolf Hitler's customary winter relief campaign speech to the Nazi party. This was the first disclosure that Hitler's desert commander was not with his army in North Africa.)

BERLIN —(From German Broadcasts) —(AP)— Adolf Hitler will open the annual German winter relief campaign today with an address to members of the National Socialist party gathered from all parts of the reich at 6 p. m. (noon, EWT).

An official announcement said the address would be broadcast by all German radios, but did not state where the meeting would be held.

In an effort to reach a wide audience, it was announced the speech also would be broadcast to the United States, Africa, Canada, South America, East Asia and the Middle East.

The Berlin radio, discussing the speech, said "every German realizes that the speech undoubtedly will give enlightening information as to the enormous tasks which are performed at the eastern front and the magnitude of successes there as well as those at home."

Ashland Puts on 'Beefless Days' To Curb Gripers

ASHLAND—Residents here are feeling "porky" over thier "beefless days" which will start Thursday, Oct. 8 and continue every Thursday thereafter for the duration.

The "beefless days" have nothing to do with the meat shortage but Ashlanders feel they have plenty to do with wartime morale. Proposed by Rev. H. E. Andrews, pastor of the Presbyterian church, and sponsored by Harry Higgens post of the American Legion, of which Rev. Andrews is chaplain, the days will be marked by absence of griping of any kind.

Posters are being prepared for downtown streets and offices to herald the days, and anybody who "beefs" will be handed a neatly printed card saying "Save your squawks till Friday.

Mayor Glenn B. Haller will issue a proclamation within the next few days making the "beefless days" official. The plan has been promoted by a Legion committee composed of Paul Donley, chairman, Stuart Fluke and Nathan Barnett.

RITES WILL BE HELD THURSDAY

BUCYRUS — Funeral services will be conducted for Mrs. Charles E. VanSickle, 79, at the Church of the Nazarene Thursday at 12:30 p. m., by Rev. L. L. Zimmerman. Burial will be in Fulton.

Mrs. VanSickle died at her home, 669 Hopley avenue, Monday night following a week's illness.

She is survived by her husband and three daughters, Mrs. Nellie Grounds and Mrs. Mabel Shiffer, Bucyrus, and Mrs. Maud Griffith, Mansfield.

ticipating there were 3,350 casualties, including 2,717 killed or missing.

"In my statement of Sept. 8," Churchill answered, "I was referring to the assaulting forces as a whole, the greater part of whom were, in fact, brought back by the royal navy.

"There is no inconsistency in this with the statement of the Canadian minister of national defense who was referring only to casualties among Canadian troops who took part."

He declined to give the Germans the benefit of precise figures but said that the losses "were very heavy and went up to nearly half of the total."

(In his earlier reference to "the assaulting forces as a whole," Churchill presumably included naval forces as well as all land forces besides the Canadians in the storming of the Dieppe beach.)

Noting that the tanks which attacked at Dieppe were "Churchills," a British type named for him, the prime minister declared in response to Laborite Emanuel Shinwell that they showed no lack of "distinction" but were being tested constantly for improvements.

The Churchill, heaviest and newest tank which the British have announced having in operation, mounts a six-pounder gun.

Toll Reaches 23 In School Bombing

LONDON—(U.P.)—The death toll of a single German plane that dropped a delayed action bomb onto a boys school near the south coast of England rose to 23 today.

Thirty-four were injured and 18 were still missing, authorities said. Twenty of the dead were pupils, from seven to 12 years old. The other three were the head mistress, a teacher and the woman manager of a nearby laundry.

All of the injured were pupils. The school register was destroyed, and reports of the boys in the school when the bomb fell varied from 72 to 74.

COMPROMISE ON MEASURE SEEN

Both Administration and Farm Bloc Swing Toward Settling Farm Price Differences.

vide that the farmer's cost of producing his crops must be taken into account before price ceilings could be placed over them.

No one seemed to know exactly how much this would raise the ceiling levels, but administration lieutenants battled against the move on the theory that it would wreck the overall directive to President Roosevelt to stabilize prices, wages and salaries at Sept. 15 levels.

Barkley had proposed a compromise amendment which would direct the president to raise farm price ceilings in any cases where they did not reflect increased labor and other costs to growers.

He had hoped to offer it in a parliamentary form requiring that it be voted on without amendment, as a substitute for the farm bloc proposal which the senate adopted temporarily yesterday to alter the present basis of computing parity prices to include farm labor costs.

A ruling by Vice President Wallace, however, laid the Barkley proposal open to the Hatch amendment and Sen. Brown (D., Mich.), floor manager for the bill, said he frankly didn't know whether the latter could be beaten or not.

Brown said an informal administration canvass indicated that 11 senators who joined the majority in voting 48 to 43 yesterday to revise parity standards were prepared to switch to support of the Barkley compromise as a substitute for the farm bloc proposal.

Conceding that this might be true, Thomas said he and other farm state members were concentrating their fight on getting the cost of production for farmers.

"We're ready to vote on the question any time," he told reporters. "It's a simple question whether the farmers are going to get back out of their crops the cost of growing them. I don't believe the country will support anything less than that."

Another Allied air unit struck at Salamaua, large Japanese base up the New Guinea coast from Buna, bombing the airfield and dispersal areas. Results of the attack could not be observed.

The exact distance covered in the Allied land advance could not be determined because of the rugged country. The recaptured ridge is approximately 32 air miles from Port Moresby and 55 miles by trail. The village of Iioribaiwa, as well as the ridge, was taken.

Tokyo Claims Japs Take Tiny Islands

LONDON — (ANS) — The Tokyo radio claimed today in a broadcast recorded by Reuters that Japanese naval forces had made landings on tiny islands in the Arafura sea north of Australia and that Allied troops on the island had been "wiped out."

The Jap report was not confirmed by any Allied source.

Jap Offensive Power Hurt, Belief

HEAQUARTERS, United States Pacific Fleet, Pearl Harbor—(U.P.)—The United States invasion of the Solomon islands and the severe air and naval losses inflicted on Japan in the South Pacific have started to show their effect on Japanese offensive power, well informed sources said today.

It was believed to be increasingly unlikely that Japan was eager to attack Russia, as it had almost certainly planned to do when the German offensive reached its climax.

It was suggested also that any Japanese plans to drive against Alaska through the Aleutian islands might have been thwarted because of the necessity of diverting naval and marine forces to the Solomons to fight against a threatened United Nations move northward.

The Japanese have been compelled to concentrate large aerial and naval forces at their bases at Rabaul in New Britain island, east of New Guinea and just north of the Solomons, and at Truk island in the Carolines, north of Rabaul.

These forces Japan apparently regards as necessary to guard against a big United Nations offensive.

War may remove certain obstacles for the attainment of this better world, but war itself cannot create good-will and freedom and true democracy. It is to the liberal disciplines of the schools and colleges that we must look for the development of persons fit for freedom.—U. S. Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker.

Purpose of National Newspaper Week

RECOGNIZING an obligation to perform what has long been considered an essential public service, those who are associated with the publication of newspapers, realize the impossibility of pleasing all of the people all of the time, or even some of the people all of the time, but it is their sincere effort at all times to gather and distribute the news, truthfully and without bias, to express editorial opinions on subjects of current interest, and to print the features, informational and educational material and advertising that are essential parts of a complete modern newspaper.

In observance of National Newspaper week, October 1-8, it is regarded as proper for newspapers to say something about themselves, and the work they are doing, but any special emphasis along this line might appear unseemly at a time when the demands of war rest heavily upon everyone, and newspapers, however much they may strive, can do little more than direct public attention to the many things that must be done and to co-operate with all organizations and agencies charged with responsibility to perform specific tasks.

It is gratifying, however, to note that expressions of appreciation of newspapers have come recently from high sources.

President Roosevelt said: "The American people are vigilant of their precious heritage of a free press. They will permit neither its corruption nor its perversion for selfish ends. They will continue to regard it as their strong right hand in war as in peace. I believe that their confidence will be justified."

Wholehearted desire of newspapers to aid in the war effort was commented on by Secretary of Commerce Jones, who added: "This is more than demonstrated by the fact that they have contributed millions of dollars worth of space to advertise various governmental activities. News support of many government campaigns has been equally generous."

Bryon Price, director of censorship, whose understanding of newspapers probably surpasses that of any of his official associates, pays tribute to the co-operation of newspapers with the office of censorship, suggesting only that an effort be made to more fully acquaint readers with the need for wartime censorship. He summarized by quoting Raymond Daniel, of the New York Times, who said: "There isn't any story in the world good enough to justify risking the life of a single American soldier."

So, as you read your daily paper during this National Newspaper week give thought to the time and effort involved in assembling, printing and delivering to your home each afternoon, a record of the happenings of the preceding twenty-four hours—and of the dangers encountered by the Associated Press, United Press and International News Service representatives who are covering the war news in all parts of the world.

No Fuel Oil Shortage In Ohio

WHILE no more than a small percentage of Ohioans may be seriously discommoded by restriction in use of fuel oil for heating their homes, this appears to be another of the instances in which "equality of sacrifice" has been decided upon by the federal government.

Information is to the effect that present and potential supplies of fuel oil in Ohio and some of the other midwestern states is sufficient to meet all probable demands for adequate heating of homes dependent on this fuel.

As one observer puts it, "The idea is much the same as telling people to use less water where there is a plentiful supply, because water is scarce in some of the desert areas of the southwest."

All necessary sacrifices will be willingly made—but no unnecessary hardships should be imposed on people in any part of the country merely to emphasize the fact that we're in a war—everybody knows that . . . except possibly some governmental bureaucrats, politically minded congressmen, and the relatively small percentage of war workers who go out on strikes.

Make Sure You Are Registered

CITIZENS of the United States still enjoy the rare privilege of being permitted to vote—and it is hoped and believed that this will continue.

Only in case of failure or neglect to be properly registered is this privilege withheld, and next Monday will be the final opportunity to register in advance of the November 3 election—if you are not already registered as a voter at your present address; if you are a first voter or if you have missed voting at the last two general elections.

The office of the board of elections in the basement of the court house is receiving registrations each day through next Monday, and on Friday, Saturday and Monday evenings will be open until 9 p. m. to accommodate those who cannot register during regular daytime hours.

Maybe you are not particularly interested in this year's election, but voting is one of the inescapable responsibilities of self government and is a duty that cannot be safely disregarded.

Make sure that you are correctly registered so that you will be eligible to vote.

Hitler's Unwilling Cannon Fodder

RUMANIANS are figuring more and more in the bulletins from the Russian front. This is in a way cheering news. Had Germany enough first-class fighting men of her own, she would not put Rumanians, Hungarians and Italians in vital spots. While her allies are brave enough, their armies are not so well-trained, and certainly they cannot be very enthusiastic over risking their lives for another country.

Finns, too, are fighting at Stalingrad, according to the Russian announcement. German losses may or may not be as heavy as reports indicate, but Hitler is certainly bleeding his allies white.

It was probably just as well to call off the Louis-Conn fight as it is difficult to make such a battle seem important at the moment.

War Results In Crime Increase

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Director J. Edgar Hoover of Uncle Sam's Federal Bureau of Investigation gave criminologists a valuable slant on the subject of law enforcement at the convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police in New York City recently.

The average policeman's theory is that the ideal method of preventing crime is to catch its perpetrators so soon after each perpetration that folk with a tendency in that direction will refrain from yielding to it, realizing that they'll surely be caught and given the law's limit if they do. J. Edgar's proposition is that the correct system's to develop 'em in such a fashion that they never'll feel the criminal urge.

Some few undoubtedly will be born with it, he admits, and he agrees that these will have to be dealt with as soon as it manifests itself, but he questions the desirability of ever trusting 'em again. Illustratively, he mentions the case of Herr Hitler, who got into trouble with the Bavarian authorities in his comparative youth and subsequently was paroled, against the protest of his local police chief, who recognized him as an incurable. And now look at him!

J. Edgar's judgment, though, is that the average individual will remain civilized if he gets the right kind of start, and the place for that to be attended to is in his home.

Crime on Increase.

Right now he concedes that crime's on the increase, presumably due to the war, and he predicts a perfect epidemic of it after the conflict, as there was after the last one.

It's understandable why war, in itself murderous, should encourage crimes of violence.

Furthermore, young chaps, of formative age, yanked from under home influences and mixed together indiscriminately, naturally can be expected to acquire certain bad habits while ranging around irresponsibly, on leave.

J. Edgar emphasized the urgent necessity of suppressing vicious "agencies."

It's all right, if vice can be suppressed. But can it be? The centralized agencies can be, yes. They can be denied licenses and raided if they operate independently. The difficulty is that, officially suppressed vice tends to scatter itself. As an old-time police reporter, I've heard this question discussed copiously.

The issue is:

A segregated vice district is more convenient for a vice-seeker to head into than it is for him to go loking for it, hither and yon. Nevertheless, the more concentrated it is, the easier it is to keep an eye on.

Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York favors keeping such districts as far removed from encampments as possible.

Soldiers and Booze.

That may be okay. Possibly, if they're unhandy to locate, the result will be to restrict their patronage. It won't necessarily follow, though, that this very restriction won't make the vicious element more energetic than ever in its quest.

Fiorello also wants drinking dumps barred from the neighborhoods of military concentrations.

To sum up—

Vice in moderation seems to be human.

If overly restricted, apparently it gets worse.

Evidently the problem's to keep it under control.

Here's My Boy!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

(By Mrs. Pearl G. Adams, Columnist for a Day)

HERE they come, those "Columnist for a Day" letters. Hundreds of them, as usual, but we can only print the tops. And of all the subjects they discuss, I doubt if any lies as close to our hearts as this touching tribute from a mother who has just welcomed her boy home on leave. And I'm thinking it will bring comfort to many another lonely home, and put courage into many an anxious heart.

"Sonny came back last night. More than a block away I saw the Navy uniform when I was returning from duty at the Army post. Despite the traffic, I rushed across the street to hold in hungry arms the little boy of yesterday. But the little boy of yesterday stood a head taller now and he lifted me up to meet his kiss. So short a time ago it was I who swung him from the ground.

"Not much he could tell me of his experiences in foreign waters, not much I asked him. We're saving our stories, his of the Navy, mine of the Army, until AFTER VICTORY. AFTER VICTORY! That's our anticipated hour! For that, I sent this only son forth at 17, clear-eyed and pink-cheeked, and a little-boy chin no razor had yet touched. That was two years ago.

"He could only stay four hours. We just sat and held hands, and listened dreamily to a radio somewhere in the distance playing the national anthem. Great feeling, patriotism. I've always had the feeling that I could follow a band playing. "The Star-Spangled Banner" right into the middle of the ocean. Slowly the words of an Old World War melody filtered into my memory: "America, Here's my boy!" The radio ceased, and my heart took up the melody and the words:

"America, I raised a boy for you,
"America, you'll find him staunch and true."

"He'll come back, again, after Victory. Until then, God will watch over him, uphold his ship, chart his way. With Old Glory floating a few yards from my office window, I'll serve, too—'till VICTORY!"

Keep Those Wires Open

There are many ways to help the war effort that cost no more than a little common sense thoughtfulness. Some are "Do" and some are "Don't." In the latter class is cutting out needless telephone calls and cutting short those that have to be made.

Business in connection with war goes on all over the country, and those in charge of it have to use the telephone. When you get on the line, you may be to blame for a busy signal that holds up a command or an official business order from Washington.

If you have to use the telephone, know what you are going to say, say it and hang up.

Before you make that long distance call about tomorrow's business, consider if a letter getting through in the morning wouldn't do just as well.

Remember, keeping off the line is a patriotic duty.—Detroit News.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

All This House Means.

I will live here always in
My thoughts; far I may be
But my mind will bring this house
And all it holds, to me.

I will sit and dream of it
And in my dreams be here:
You, as you are now, I'll see
In each day of the year.

Absent I will be and yet
In this house rest secure
I will always be here and
Of that you can be sure.

Unrest In Balkans Not Expected To Bring Any Abrupt Axis Break

—By GLENN BABB

(Editor's Note—This column is written today by Glenn Babb, substituting for DeWitt Mackenzie, who has arrived in Britain for a shorter range view of the war and who will resume writing the column tomorrow from London.)

AN OPTIMISTIC but anonymous Yugoslav official in London compares today's frenzied situation in the Balkans to that of 1918 on the eve of the collapse of the satellite members of the Hohenzollern-Hapsburg axis. That autumn Turkey, Bulgaria and Austria-Hungary one by one raised the white flag and the German surrender followed quickly.

But hopes built on any imagined parallel between that September and this almost certainly will prove illusory. Undoubtedly Hitler, like the kaiser, is having trouble keeping his lesser allies of the southeast up to the mark. There can be little doubt it requires strong pressure to keep the Rumanians and Hungarians fighting side by side against the Red army, not to mention the Italians. But the parallel ends about there. In 1918 the British already had conquered large sections of the Turkish empire; Bulgaria had been invaded by the French and Serbs under the French General D'Esperey the polyglot armies of the Austro-Hungarian empire were simply melting away.

Today the threat of invasion is far away from Hungary and Rumania. The armies they have contributed to the Russian campaign are fighting from 500 to 1,000 miles from home and the promises that they are to share in the spoils of conquest, or at least have favored places in the Hitlerian new order, have the appearance of fairly sound currency.

BUT SIGNS are appearing that the one-sided alliance is suffering increasing stresses. Fear was the primary force that brought the Balkan states into the combination, fear and greed. Now fear is being exerted from the other side and the costs are rising alarmingly. The war has been brought home to Bucharest, Budapest, Sofia and Zagreb by the long-range bomber, American, British, Russian.

The moral effect of these raids could be tremendous. The little southeastern states were assured that the power of the United States could never reach them. Realization of the falseness of that assurance will go far toward destroying confidence in the whole of the Nazi promise.

Meanwhile the costs of the new order are mounting frightfully. Allied officials in London say Rumania's contribution, in the sieges of Odessa, Sevastopol and now Stalingrad, have reached the appalling total of 300,000 in dead alone. The evidence is strong that Hitler has allotted his allies a place of honor in the front ranks of those sanguinary operations. And the Nazi pressure continues more generous contributions.

In Croatia the puppet regime is finding control of a turbulent population beyond its unaided powers. From Hungary, as from Finland, come declarations emphasizing the defensive character of the warfare now conducted by their armies and other evidences of war weariness.

* * *

THESE doubtless are dangerous stresses in the Axis combination. But as long as Hitler's armies are advancing they are not going to produce collapse. They are merely promises of what may come when the tide of war begins to roll back.

Health And Diet

Potatoes Rich In Food Value.

—By DR. CLENDENING

WE MAY have to get down to the humbler foods before long and we might as well make the best of it. In the case of the potato there is plenty of best to be made of it because it is one of the finest of all foods. It contains good portions of protein and starch, therefore it is nutritious. It has nearly all the minerals and vitamins A, B and C.

There are some tricks about preparing potatoes in order to get all the good out of them. The protein is more abundant in the outer layer and the waxier a potato is the more protein it has. It is therefore good sense from a nutritional standpoint to cook potatoes with the skins on or when peeling do not peel too deep.

The skin of the potato, anyway, like most fruit skins, contains more of the vitamins and minerals than the meat, and when you throw away the skin you are throwing away the best part.

Cooking Potatoes.

In the time required for boiling, some of the mineral matter and protein are lost unless the potatoes are boiled in the skin. The water should be boiling when the potatoes are put into it and the boiling should not be interrupted even for a minute until the potatoes are cooked.

Baking is the best way to cook a potato. As soon as the baked potato is cooked, a fork should be thrust through the skin in order to let the enclosed steam escape: otherwise they become soggy at once.

Potato chips have a reputation for being indigestible, but in reality they are not.

In dietetic planning for the invalid mashed potatoes are splendidly adapted for the patient with ulcer or acid indigestion. They do not irritate this delicate organism at all, and a small amount of them gives a great deal of nourishment.

Testing.

In buying, one should select potatoes that feel firm and hard. The pulp should be yellowish-white. Commercial buyers use the following test: cut the potato and rub the pieces together. A white froth will appear round the edges. The more froth the better the potatoes.

"No country ever had scurvy where there was a plentiful supply of potatoes," writes a great nutritionist. So let's keep all our potatoes at home, in case of a dire emergency.

Man About Manhattan

Gambler's Luck

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If you set out to choose a career fraught with peril and anxiety you could do no better than to begin operations as a gambler in New York. You might make a little money at it, but you would have no ease of mind. If you ran a small hand book, taking small bets on horse races, a swarm of peculiarly meddlesome cops would harass you right into the workhouse. If you rose to be a mighty operator, dealing in thousands, you would have a good chance of bringing Mayor LaGuardia down on your neck.

It is perhaps no accident that the victims of three of New York's most spectacular murders were gamblers. Joseph B. Elwell, the bridge expert, was shot to death in his West Side home in 1923, his slayers never apprehended. Herman Rosenthal died at the hands of four hired gunmen in the city's most shocking homicide, in 1912. Finally, Arnold Rothstein succumbed to a bullet. He staggered from a card game in a midtown hotel, one November night in 1928, mortally wounded. Like Elwell's, Rothstein's slayer has never been caught.

THE murder of Herman Rosenthal gave New York a brand new understanding of the art of murder. It will be remembered that Rosenthal was shot down at the instance of Police Captain Becker for revealing police extortion to a newspaper. The agents of death were four unsavory hoodlums, Gyp the Blood, Lefty Louie, Whitey Lewis and Dago Frank. They died in the chair, as did Becker, for their $100 apiece.

It was the fact that murder could be had for a price that stunned the town, not the demise of Rosenthal, about whom nobody had any great feeling, one way or the other. That was in 1912. A dozen years later it was commonplace. Newspaper readers, learning of a booze operator shot and flung in a Westchester snowdrift, never doubted that the killer was a minor thug earning a night's pay. Prohibition gave crooks money, and spared them soiling their hands with such messy jobs as killing.

* * *

APART from death by violence, the professional gambler risks deportation. Unless he pleads to acknowledge himself a vagrant. That permits the court to order him to go packing. A man without visible means of support is no good to any community, the court holds, and the municipality is well rid of him. The municipality that gets him is of no concern to the banishing judge.

Yes, gambling is a stiff way to make a dollar, even if you live.

A Farmer's Diary

Gay Volunteer

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WE PLANTED a patch of soybeans for hay, in mid-July. I drove the drill, and our four little boys rode on the top. The horses were slow and the patch was small—otherwise such procedure might have been inadvisable.

The soybeans came up, and in less than two weeks were covering the ground with a carpet of tender green. Walking along the side nearest the road, to inspect their growth, my wife and I noticed another kind of plant among the bean leaves. It was a sturdy sort, with heart shaped leaves.

"There's something you didn't plant," she remarked to me. "What is it?"

I looked and smiled. "Wait and see," I said—and promptly forgot the incident.

Now the beans are tall—more than waist high—with green pods well set on and roots bulging with nodules. These contain nitrogen taken from the air, and will be left in the ground for another year. I examined them yesterday, and figured a time for the cutting.

I walked along the gravel road where the field of beans is bordered by a hedge of elderberry stalks. Glossy purple clusters of elderberries hung, dead ripe, among goldenrod and misty wild asters. Autumn was vividly here. The air was cool. I breathed deep and enjoyed the smell of everything.

Then, glancing up along the expanse of green, something caught my eye—a saucy sunflower head, nodding radiantly. It had shot up twice as high as its beany neighbors, and was peeping over into the road, to greet passersby. I smiled as I clambered up the bank, to see it closer.

How did it get there? Nobody knows. Respectable, conventional sunflowers, of sober, conservative breeds—suitable for hen food—have long ago bloomed and now hang their heavy heads, dry and bulging with striped seeds.

This unplanted volunteer cannot hope to make seed for itself—it was started too late. Frost will catch it, on the first cold evening.

Yet I stood there admiringly and stroked its vivid, cheerful petals and marveled at the cushiony softness of its loop fringed golden brown center. Even when I had gone on, I looked back again to admire the bright splash of color against the bean field, and the darker background of woods.

'Tell them, dear," I quoted, "if eyes were made for seeing, Then Beauty is its own excuse for being."

WAR PRODUCTION STILL LAGGING, NELSON REPORTS

Output's Up But We Must Do More Yet and Faster, Says WPB Chairman.

entering the crucial fourth quarter of the year. We must exert unheard of efforts, and we must give the closest attention to scheduling, inventories, and allocations of materials if we are to push the production curve as high as it must go."

The report said output of war materials last month was eight per cent greater than in July, and that production today is "somewhat more than three-and-a-half times as large as in the pre-Pearl Harbor month" of November, 1941. The total value of munitions produced last month was $4,700,000,000, Nelson said, but he added:

"These figures, while impressive by themselves, are not impressive enough. The plain fact of the matter is that production lagged in August about 14 per cent behind the first of the month forecasts.

"It is true that these forecasts are set very high, giving us high goals to shoot at, that schedules are being revised, and that forecasts also must be revised to give us closer measures of the production effort compared with production possibilities.

"None the less, the performance is not one that we can brag about.

"It is my conviction that we must do a much better job in the last quarter of 1942 than we have done so far, if we are to end the year with a record in which we can take some measure of pride.

"Let no one take false comfort in the fact that our production lines are turning out vast quantities of material. Production is big, but our goals are bigger."

Nelson described the overall picture as "good in some spots, fair in others, poor in some" and released the following boxscore of August munitions output compared with July:

Aircraft—up six per cent.

Ordnance—up three per cent.

Naval ship construction — up seven per cent.

Merchant ship construction—up six per cent.

Other munitions — up 14 per cent.

The WPB munitions production index—taking as 100 the November, 1941, rate—showed an increase of 27 points from 330 in July to 357 in August.

Mr. Roosevelt said recently that production still can be doubled before the maximum rate is attained.

SCORES ARMY IN LOSS OF LUZON

Admiral Hart Declares Planes 'Missed Big Chance' To Cripple Japanese.

of the navy's policy-making general board, said the Japanese had to conquer Luzon as the first step toward Java because it was the strongest island in the Philippines and "the Japs could not leave this power unimpaired on their flanks."

"This was the place and the time to have beaten our enemy in the air," he wrote. "On those fields were more than twice as many P-40's as the A. V. G. ever had, but again we failed to take much toll of the Japanese planes.

"That first day or so was our chance in the air, and we missed it. From there onward it was backward all the way, on the sea, on the land, under the sea and over both."

Discussing the Pearl Harbor attack, he said:

". . . It is to be expected that the supposedly best defensive weapon, the fighter plane, will interfere with such an attack and at least punish it severely. The fighters which were based on Oahu's aerodromes missed their big chance. . . . "

"No one should have given high valuation to such old and very slow capital ships" as were lost in the raid, he added, but "the losses in large planes . . . were very serious. . . .

"When it comes to assessing fault for Pearl Harbor, whose fault was it that fifth columnists were able to send out communications with such freedom?"

ALARM CLOCKS THAT'LL WAKE UP BERLIN!

Ohio's Compliments to the Axis!

Countless thousands of war products are in day-and-night production in Ohio factories—from cartridge clips to giant naval gun mounts, from spark plugs to 60-ton tanks. SOHIO salutes its home state's tremendous war efforts—tells here a typical story of weapons made faster and better, aided by SOHIO products.

In the business end of a bomb is a fuse like a tiny alarm clock. When a Yankee pilot figures it's time to wake some Nazis up—he knows it will go off where it will do the most good!

For these fuses come off an Ohio factory production line as accurate as a fine watch. That was the trick: to make delicate parts, perfectly cut, with surfaces like glass—and do it at high speeds.

How is it done? That's a military secret! But when ingenious industrial skill ran into a serious "bottleneck"—the need for a cutting lubricant that could withstand the terrific machining speed—SOHIO engineers were able to supply a special industrial oil designed for the job.

We like to tell about this bomb fuse incident because it is typical of the way thousands of similar problems—big and little—are being speedily overcome in all branches of war industry. Just another reason why the Axis can't win!

LOOSE TALK IS COSTLY

It may not cost lives, as in the case of military or maritime information, but telling the opponents unnesessary secrets about your hand can cost you tricks. When you know what is going to be the final declaration for your side, and the only remaining question for you is the height of it, you will often find that it pays to withhold as much as possible from the enemy. In any event, consider carefully whether bidding another suit will be of more value to you or your partner than to the other fellows.

What a basic difference in the bidding at those two tournament tables. At the first, a raise to 2-Hearts would have meant, the way the pair used its conventions, that the hand was quite weak, but with a good suit fit, whereas bidding another suit first and then supporting hearts would show a hand of about average or better high-card strength. At the second table, a raise to 2-Hearts was being used to indicate anything from a bare fit in a weak hand to a really pretty fair one, just under enough to force to game with 3-Hearts. Such being the case, South then tried a tentative 3-Hearts to find whether North had a weak or solid raise the first time. He had a good sound one, so went to 4-Hearts.

Where North showed his spades at the first table, West was, of course, scared away from the suit, and led his diamond Q to the A. The heart finesse and two more hearts were followed by the spade A, the 10, J and K, then the Q won by West. He sent the diamond 2 to the K, and the club J was won by the A. The heart 5 to the 6 enabled South to discard two losing clubs on the spade 8 and 6, but the club Q had to be lost then to the K, holding South to exactly game.

Where the declarer's side bid nothing but hearts, West opened the spade Q to the A. After three hearts, the spade J was trapped. Now the rest of the play was simple to take all the tricks except one given up to the club K. Thus South scored two extra tricks, a reward to the side for not telling the opponents about dummy's spade suit.

If West leads the 3 of his partner's originally bid hearts, why should East play his 6 instead of his K on the trick in his effort to beat South's 3-No Trumps.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Have you seen Mr. Underwood?" I asked, countering Ronald's question.

"No, I haven't," the boy replied. "Later, Ronald." I said, trying to soften the blow, "my father will have important tasks for you to do, but just now the best way you can help is to stay quietly here at the Underwoods and be ready to do anything they ask of you."

"I understand perfectly, Aunt Madge," Ronald said, "and will stay here until you send for me."

A Breathing Spell.

"Thank you, and au revoir," I said quickly, then hurried down stairs, where Dicky met me.

"Suppose you sit down for a change," he said.

"Will Father be here soon?"

"Just as soon as he can get here," Dicky said. "I didn't explain anything to him, and I'm not going to ask you what happened after I left. You can spill it all to the Chief, and I'll listen in. Just lean back and relax."

Then we sat in comfortable silence until my father arrived.

We hurried out to meet him, and in answer to his imperative "Well?" I told him briefly of Carolyn's almost successful attempt to escape and how it was thwarted.

"She's too modest, Dad," Dicky said. "Nobody else in the world could have brought Lillian round."

"Always one hundred percent," my father said, smiling at me. "But the girl mustn't be left here another quarter of an hour. It was a mistake ever to let her near Lillian. How soon can you get her ready to start, Margaret?"

"She is ready now," I said. "But Miss Whitlock does not dare leave her while she gets ready herself. She says if Dicky and I can mount guard over Carolyn, she will be ready in ten minutes.

"Lillian says she and Harry can get along without Miss Whitlock as long as we need her, and I thought you'd wish me to bring her with us."

"Of course," my father said briskly. "It's the only thing to do. And now if you and Richard will go up to Carolyn, I'll have the car brought directly in front of the door. When we once get the girl safely inside we shall blindfold her. Please tell Miss Whitlock."

As Dicky and I turned toward the stairway, an involuntary exclamation escaped me.

"Blindfold her! Then you are taking her to—"

My father answered my unfinished question impatiently.

"To the hideaway, of course."
